JEWELRY MAKING NEW

COLD CONNECTIONS

with Gayton Arrigotti, Moss Beach Artworks

Learn to make rivets and join multi-layered mixed metals. Riveting is a cold joining method, so no heat is applied during the process. This is a useful skill for many jewelry makers, whether hobbyists, or professionals, because it is inexpensive, and a relatively easy technique which provides a method of creating jewelry pieces with multiple dimensions without soldering. The design can be your own or can be a project piece for the purpose of leaning the skills taught.
